

In The Garden

She had a fascination with the way light bounced off the foliage in her garden, and that's what prompted artist Ann S. Adams to create her work in the exhibition Streaming, through Oct. 22 at Gremillion & Co. Fine Art gallery. Her paintings reflect and draw upon traditional and contemporary techniques to bring a beautiful, organic element that celebrates nature and botanicals. Adams' aesthetic explores light and how it dances off plant life in suspended moments in time. She says, "It is in the color of the leaves, in combination with the intensity of nearby blooms I encounter my muse and inspiration."
